About the Railway Hotels of Australia Author, Scott Whitaker

Scott Whitaker

Scott Whitaker grew up in Melbourne in the 1960s and 1970s before being transferred to Queensland with his employer Airservices, then Department of Aviation. After working in Air Traffic Control for over 30 years, he retired a few years ago.

Scott returned to Melbourne but has recently returned to QLD to soak up the sunshine at Bowen (northern region of the Whitsundays). He has two adult children.

His interests include railways, probably kindled by the stories told by his grandfather who was a locomotive fireman on steam engines during the Second World War, Australian history and travel.

It is these interests that Scott collectively seized upon at retirement as he entered the world of authorship, travelling around Australia, to explore the history of the Railway Hotels of Australia.

This all-ages talk lasts about an hour and covers many topics such as the coming of the railway, pub life, general history of the state – social, political and economic - over the past 170 years. Scott will also cover topics such as self-publishing and researching.

Happy Anniversary, Southern Cross CRC!

On Friday 26th July the Southern Cross CRC held their Anniversary Celebrations.

The occasion marked the anniversary of 20 years in the current CRC building, and 25 years of being a CRC (or Telecentre as it was back then!)

CRC coloured cupcakes, photos of events held both past and present, and a great group of attendees made for a wonderful morning tea.

While it does not feel like it has been 25 years, we're happy with all we've achieved in this time and look forward to holding more events and helping our community into the future.

19 August 2019

For appointments please call
the Southern Cross
Pharmacy on 90491056

Appointments will be

THE LOCAL TOURIST GOES DOWN MARSHALL ROAD

I had to be in the city for a few days, and left about 2pm on Sunday. I was taking my time in peak hour Sunday driving, along Marshall Road near Whiteman Park. I looked to my right idly, just waiting for the traffic to start flowing again, when I was struck by the amount of 'roos in the paddocks. There weren't just 50 or so, there were literally hundreds of 'roos grazing on the fresh green grass in the paddock. It was as thick as a flock of sheep. I cant believe there was not one roo dead on the road. Not one roo stuck up its head to take a look around.

I immediately gave thought to farming roos. If they can stay in the paddock alongside Marshall Road and not even attempt to jump over the fence to play Russian Roulette with the traffic like they do in the country, then why cant we farm roos in herds for their meat in a commercial capacity? Those roos were so contented and calm, they didn't even look up from their chomping when someone tooted their horn, or a Revheads V8 thundered by; they just kept on chowing down. Unbelievable!!!!

I reckon one Kangaroo a day gets skittled by a vehicle on the Marvel Loch or Kooly roads every day. What a waste. All that protein gone to the ants and little critters instead of being chucked in a roasting pan with vegies. Yum!

We need innovative and loaded commercial farmers to get their act together, (initially it will be costly) herd up all their roos that they are always cursing about (sharefarmers) whack them in a paddock, strengthen the fences, stop chasing them so they become calm and tamed, give them a dose of worming medicine, and Voila! We have a new industry that we can capitalise on in a domestic or overseas market. Try China or India (they have the population and eat anything) first and then the rest of the world will follow, especially if its slaughtered in a humane way.

I suspect there are more kangaroos in Australia than there was 200 hundred years ago mainly due to the extra water points in dams, water holes etc. And more grazing opportunities like grain crops and imported grasses. The Americans farm bison, Deer; the Africans farm wildebeest and gnu; the Chinese farm anything that moves; why not us with our kangaroo and emu?

I think a meal of 'roo tail soup or a roasted backstrap in a garlic sauce on a bed of sweet potato mash and greens would be a culinary delight? I can taste it already.
The sky is the limit, surely?

NAIDOC Day Celebrations

Moorine Rock Primary School, St Joseph's Primary School and Southern Cross District High School

Each year, the official NAIDOC committee centres the celebrations around a unique theme. The theme for 2019 was 'Voice Truth Treaty' with the aim of working together for a shared future. Voice, Treaty and Truth were three key elements to the reform set out in the Uluru Statement from the Heart, these reforms represent the unified position of First Nations Australians. This message, hear our voice and recognise our truth, has been developed through generations and is echoed throughout the land. As a result, there is a call for a new beginning, marked by a formal process of agreement and truth-telling, that will allow us to move forward together.

Last Wednesday on the 31st July, we joined forces with Moorine Rock and St Joseph's Primary School to collectively acknowledge and celebrate the history, culture and achievements of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. To share these celebrations, we were gifted with the presence of many special guests and activity presenters from the Southern Cross Police Department, Minjar Gold, Brian Champion and Ethel. We also had a number of Police officers from other Departments across the Wheatbelt that travelled great distances to join us.

The students were grouped in like-ages to foster socialisation and networking between the schools. During the afternoon, they rotated through a number of activity stations and had the opportunity to share their lunch and recess breaks together. The highlight from the students were taste-testing Larry's famous kangaroo kebabs and the kangaroo steaks, sausages and ice-cream at the Minjar Gold tent. Many students also got their 'hands dirty' perfecting their damper-making and painting skills, showing great leadership, cooperation and teamwork throughout the afternoon.

On behalf of the students and the schools, we would like to extend a sincere thank you to Senior Constable Larry Garlett for his efforts in working with the school and various organisations to organise the celebrations, ensuring they were a great success. We would also like to thank Minjar Gold for their contribution to the day in donating and coordinating BBQ meats, ice-creams, merchandise for prizes and a donation of an additional $250 that went towards various resources to facilitate the other activity stations. Finally, we would like to thank the guest presenters, Brian Champion, Ethel and Kaye as well as the teaching staff from all three schools that assisted with the activities and helped to manage the students within the groups. It was a fantastic opportunity to network, collaborate and acknowledge the contributions of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples that was thoroughly enjoyed by all involved.

4 BENEFITS FOR A TESTAMENTARY TRUST – by David Rice, Principal

When making decisions about your estate for after you pass away, you have probably considered and undertaken the drafting of your will. Wills are an effective way to ensure that your assets are distributed to your family and friends according to your wishes. However, including a testamentary trust within your will may increase your control over the distribution of your estate to friends and family. This article will explain what a testamentary trust is and go through four advantages that they could have for your future.

What is a Testamentary Trust?

A testamentary trust (also referred to as a will trust) offers greater control over estate planning and distribution to beneficiaries compared to simple wills.

A testamentary trust is as a trust established by a will, the benefits being:

- maximum flexibility;
- better asset protection from third parties; and
- tax planning advantages.

Note that the trust does not come into existence until the person who created the testamentary trust in their Will has died.

Most testamentary trusts nominate a primary beneficiary (such as an adult child) and then allow for secondary beneficiaries. These may be the spouses of your children, grandchildren, etc.

Commonly, a beneficiary is the surviving spouse or child of a deceased party. It is possible to have multiple testamentary trusts in a will – one for each primary beneficiary.

There are four main advantages to testamentary trusts.

1. Flexibility

Testamentary trusts allow for greater flexibility to suit your particular circumstances.

For example, within a testamentary trust, it is possible to restrict access to assets or distributions to a particular beneficiary.

As a testamentary trust functions similarly to a discretionary family trust. Accordingly, the trustee may decide which beneficiaries receive trust income, provided that they are nominated in the trust.

This flexibility means that the trustee can make tax efficient choices when distributing any:

- 1. capital gains; and
- 2. dividends.

Additionally, trustees will have the maximum flexibility to deal with superannuation benefits, in the case that they are paid to the estate.

2. Estate Planning

Compared to a simple will, a testamentary trust allows beneficiaries to take more control over assets against third parties.

As the trustee holds the title to the trust's assets (rather than the beneficiaries directly), this allows testamentary trusts to protect assets from any potential:

- court proceedings;
  - bankruptcy; or
  - legal action.

For example, if the beneficiary owes money to creditors and then receives a distribution from a deceased's estate, creditors will not be able to access the distribution if it is received through a testamentary trust. This is because the trust owns the money.

If your surviving spouse or an adult child is engaged in business with a significant financial risk, a testamentary trust can provide more asset protection. Similarly, it may provide family law protection for adult children.

3. Tax Planning

Testamentary trusts allow trustees to distribute and split the income of the trust with tax planning in mind.

Moreover, distributions from a testamentary trust to minors will receive the usual full tax-free threshold concessions, currently at $18,200 (as of January 2019). This tax planning benefit is considerable to beneficiaries who have children under 18 as they can pay for their children's expenses out of pre-tax income. This is useful for things such as school fees or other extra-curricular expenses.

4. Capital Gains Tax Benefits

When a capital gains tax asset passes from the executor (the person appointed to carry out the will) to a beneficiary, the law will disregard any capital gain made by the executor. The ATO views the trustee of a testamentary trust in the same way as a legal personal representative of the estate (for example, the executor).

Moreover, there is no tax on the transfer of cash proceeds of a life insurance policy or superannuation death payout. However, you should contact your accountant to discuss your particular circumstances.

Testamentary Trust Considerations

There are a number of particulars that you should consider before setting up a testamentary trust.

Firstly, similarly to a will, a testamentary trust does not come into effect until after your death. While it is possible to set one up after you die, your beneficiaries must do so within three years of your death. The beneficiaries of a post-death testamentary trust will be limited to your spouse and children. You can only fund the trust with your assets, as well as payments made in consequence of your death (including superannuation and insurance proceeds).

It is important to note that you must draft testamentary trusts with the will maker's personal circumstances in mind. Moreover, there are ongoing costs involved in maintaining a testamentary trust such as tax returns for the trust.

Key Takeaways

Whether you should include a testamentary trust in your will depends on your particular circumstances and needs. Testamentary trusts can be a useful instrument for effective estate planning. They can be particularly useful where beneficiaries:

- have potential risk issues;
- are children under 18; or
- would like to protect assets from claims by spouses or partners of your children.

The cost of a Testamentary Trust Will is $3500 plus GST. It may seem a lot to pay however the cost is easily recouped with the above-mentioned benefits of a trust.

Please note that the complexity of the structure can be difficult to manage. If you wish to include a testamentary trust in your will, contact David Rice at Griffiths Rice & Co Barristers & Solicitors on 92743611 who can make the process easy and provide you with certainty.

Yours faithfully

Saw, Charles: Opened the first bank in Southern Cross, a branch of the Commercial Bank in December 1890. Beforehand a system of IOU's was in vogue due shortage of cash.

The bank had to be staffed by two officers due no telegraphic communication with head office.

It was here where Arthur Bayley brought 559 ounces of gold when he discovered Coolgardie. In 1893 Saw resigned and purchased Cameron's store. He did well and started a stage coach line between Southern Cross and Coolgardie.

Afterwards he moved to Perth where he was elected a metropolitan councillor and president of Perth Stock Exchange.
